Policy Statement and Recommendations

Addressing Navajo Language Loss

Developed by the Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors on behalf of the 20th Navajo Studies Conference Community Discussion on Navajo Language Loss

Policy Statement: The Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors recommends a resolution to address Navajo language loss. This request is based on community input from the Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. membership at the 20th Navajo Studies Conference in Flagstaff, Arizona from May 29-30, 2015 and at the Navajo Language Summit at Diné College from May 22-24, 2017.

Background: A community dialogue was held to discuss the issue of language loss on the Navajo Nation of approximately 120 Navajo elders and youth. The discussion centered on potential causes of language loss and identified multiple solutions to increase language revitalization and maintenance. The community discussion notes were transcribed, coded and analyzed to capture the solutions to revitalize the Navajo language. Based on the community discussions, eight major themes were generated along with three major recommendations. The results of these recommendations were presented to the Diné Language Summit Attendees and they approved the three recommendations to be presented to the Navajo Nation Tribal Council during their Winter Session 2017.

The Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors hereby seeks continued community and leadership support in developing strategies to address Navajo language loss. Both an online and paper survey was distributed to over 1,000 members from November 2012 to October 2013. We received 133 survey responses from our membership. The results revealed that one of the primary topics of critical concern was Navajo language loss. Our membership acknowledges the number of Navajos who speak our language has been declining the past couple of decades. Based on the 2010 U.S. Census, they report that 2.2% of those residing on the Navajo Nation, did not speak English at all and reported Navajo as their primary language. The percentage approximates to 3,726 monolingual Navajo speakers. To the Navajo Studies membership, this is an alarmingly low number of speakers and these recommendations are an effort to change this situation.

Authority of the Board: The Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors is charged with the responsibility of adopting policy statements based on our membership's concerns and we therefore offer the following recommendations.

POLICY RECOMMENDATION ONE:

Improve and support the Navajo Nation's certification of Navajo language teachers with increased funding to the Navajo Oral Navajo Language Assessment (ODLA).

Comments: [The] license from state of Arizona to teach the [Navajo] language[,] sometimes this evaluation process is not adequate for a fluent speaker who may not have a degree.

Background: The states of Arizona and New Mexico permit alternative teacher certification in Native languages (Native American Language Certification Policy R7-2-614J Arizona Department of Education [1]; New Mexico Statutes - School Personnel Act Section 22-10A-13[2]). For the Navajo Nation to adequately assess a person's comprehension in the Navajo language, the Department of Navajo Education is responsible for evaluating and assessing Navajo language teachers. Through the Oral Navajo Language Assessment (ODLA), the Office of Standards Curriculum and Assessment Development (OSCAD) staff assesses the applicant.

Funding Challenges: The OSCAD program is housed within the central office in Window Rock, Arizona. Currently, they have a small staff of four individuals (Program Manager, Administrative Assistant, and two Senior Education Specialists). The staff is responsible for assessing Navajo Language teachers for the entire Navajo Nation. In addition, the ODLA tool has remained unchanged since its original implementation. The tool only tests for comprehension of the language, but does not determine if a teacher can teach a second language.

Capacity Demands: The Navajo Nation is one of the largest tribal nations in the country with a small percentage of the population speaking the Navajo language. Based on recent demographics from the 2010 U.S. Census, there are 168,337 people residing on the nation. This is a decline from the 2000 U.S. Census of 175,228 people. According to the 2010 U.S. Census, there are 49,711 school aged children ranging in age from 5 to 18. In addition, OSCAD must cover five different school types on the Navajo Nation, which are 81 public schools, 34 Bureau of Indian Education (BIE)-operated schools, 29 Grant/Contract (BIE-funded) schools, 8 Residential Halls, and 7 Private and Parochial Schools. In summary, there are a total of 144 schools with 8 residential halls and 7 private schools.

Recommendation: The Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors and its membership request that the OSCAD program hire a full-time assessment specialist to redesign the existing ODLA tool. The additional staffing should also include a budget to help ensure the assessment meets similar stringent requirements equal to that of the states of Arizona and New Mexico.

POLICY RECOMMENDATION TWO:

The Navajo Nation needs to recognize the Navajo language as the Nation's official language with English as its 'adopted' language.

Comment: Navajo does not have an official language – don't say its Navajo only;

Need to go full immersion. Navajo only speaking law?

Background: Currently, the Navajo Nation does not have an official language. Instead, the Navajo Nation has inserted Navajo language preferences into job descriptions for government employees working for the nation. The nation has also recently removed the required 'Navajo fluency' from its requirements for the Navajo Nation presidency.

Recommendation: The Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors recommends the establishment of the Navajo language as the Nation's official language and to create a Navajo language holiday to celebrate it.

POLICY RECOMMENDATION THREE:

The Navajo Nation needs to require all schools' mission statements to include a commitment to teaching the Navajo language.

Comment: Not in school mission statements. Admin "talks" and "shows" support when on the stand but not stand by it in reality.

Background: The Navajo Nation's Board of Education (NNBOE) currently retains the charge to coordinate with other governmental entities and education providers in developing and implementing appropriate educational and residential standards for schools and school systems serving the Navajo Nation, including the teaching of Navajo language and culture (Navajo Nation Title 10). The NNBOE carries the additional charge of developing standards, curriculum, instruction, and assessments to promote the education of all Navajo students in revitalizing and perpetuating the Navajo language (Title 10 § 111) Recommendation: The Navajo Studies Conference, Inc. Board of Directors recommends a unified school mission statement to be adopted by all public, tribal, and federal school boards operating on the Navajo Nation.

Yá'át'ééh,

I am writing to offer my comments on the proposed legislation (Tracking No. 0235-19) to establish a Diné Bizaad subcommittee of the Naabik'íyáti' committee and approving appointments to the subcommittee. I am in favor of the proposed legislation. It is a good first step in sustaining and revitalizing Diné bizaad. Hopefully by establishing this subcommittee, it will lead to establishing the sustaining and revitalizing of Diné bizaad as a major priority for the Navajo Nation government similar to other priorities like economic development.

Many Diné people want the language to continue and by the Council establishing this subcommittee it can begin the process of a systemic approach to where learning, teaching, speaking, writing, and reading Diné bizaad is common on all of the Navajo Nation. Numerous Indigenous communities around the world have made revitalizing their language a top priority. The Navajo Nation with the government's leadership can help with the revitalization of Diné bizaad. While the establishment of this subcommittee is a good first step, subsequent projects, activities, and funding will be needed.

Thank you for taking the time to read my comment.

Very best,

Very unnecessary committee. A waste of our money. Navajo speaking and tradition is the responsibilityof the parents at home, not the schools and government.

We need to direct money to protecting children from criminals that may be relatives in the home.

The Office of Standards, Assessment, and Curriculum Development (OSCAD) is very grateful that meaningful legislation is being introduced to revitalize our Diné Bizaad and hope that the Navajo Nation Council will support this legislation. In particular, the Department of Diné Education is concerned with ensuring that Diné Bizaad is being effectively taught in our schools because classrooms are where the Navajo Nation can significantly and positively improve outcomes for our children and future generations.

Please see attached letter.

Thank you,

RE: COMMENTS – LEGISLATION 0235-19

Dear Honorable Delegate Brown:

The Office of Standards, Assessment, and Curriculum Development (OSCAD) is very grateful that meaningful legislation is being introduced to revitalize our Diné Bizaad and hope that the Navajo Nation Council will support this legislation. In particular, the Department of Diné Education is concerned with ensuring that Diné Bizaad is being effectively taught in our schools because classrooms are where the Navajo Nation can significantly and positively improve outcomes for our children and future generations.

OSCAD recommends the following language to the proposed legislation:

1. On Page 2, Paragraph 3, insert "Bureau of Indian Education" after "Bureau of Indian Affairs."
2. On Page 2, Paragraph 5, Insert "and accountability/responsibility" after "commitment."
3. On Page 2, Paragraph 6, insert "and other assessments as developed by the Navajo Nation."
4. On Page 2, add a Paragraph 10 after Paragraph 9 to state: "Require all schools that are under the jurisdiction and authority of the Navajo Nation, especially community-controlled schools, to implement the Diné Content Standards and administer related assessments as set forth by the Navajo Nation."

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me at (928) 871-6728 or vangeenez@nndode.org. Thank you.
