RE: CO-80-20, An Action Relating to Law and Order, Naabik'iyati' and Navajo Nation Council; Amending 2 N.N.C. §§ 970-978, Commission on Navajo Government Development and the Office of the Navajo Government Development

Dear Speaker Damon,

The purpose of the Commission on Navajo Government Development and the Office of Navajo Government Development continues to the be the subject of debate. The original established purpose of the Commission is "to review and evaluate all aspects of the existing government structure of the Navajo Nation including laws, rules and regulations, practices, functions, goals and objectives" and to "develop recommendations and proposals for alternative forms of government for consideration and possible adoption by the Navajo People through a referendum vote." See CD-68-89. The charge was given after the turmoil of 1989 and was meant to be a temporary authorization. Since that time the Commission and Office's direction has drastically changed and is becoming the longest temporary entity in Navajo government.

The Navajo Nation Courts have confirmed the temporary nature of the Commission in recommending alternative forms of government. The Court said in the case of Shirley v. Morgan, "the Council, through the recitals of the Resolution No. CD-68-89, made a solemn compact with the People that the structure will be temporary and left it up to the People to choose the final structure of government." In addressing the Council's dissolution of the Commission and Office the Court, in the second Shirley v. Morgan case, held that the Commission and Office "must be immediately restored according to the original terms in the Title II Amendments of 1989 in order to renew providing for adequate information and education of the public as to Navajo Nation government and alternative government structures, and to finally fulfill their purpose of enabling the People to participate in the development of our Navajo Nation government." The purpose and direction of the Commission and the Office is completely off track, and this is a complete disservice to the Navajo People.

The amendments in CO-80-20 lead the Commission and Office farther down the wrong path. The government structure is a decision for the Navajo People but the amendments pay cursory acknowledgement to the People. Additionally, the amendments create a more bureaucratic structure, a larger drain on our financial resources by increasing the Commission member's stipends and putting on more layers of bureaucracy that will frustrate the purpose of finding a new government structure.

We agree with the People on the search for a permanent form of Navajo government. The People made recommendations at the 2002 Convention but since that time no effort has been made to act on the People's recommendations. The Commission and the Office have shirked their duty with respect to the People's recommendations. But as a quasi-independent authority the Commission and the Office "are part of the Navajo Nation government but shall be given considerable independence of operation, free from restrictions; and their members and staff shall be subject to removal only for good cause, such as malfeasance neglect of duties or office, or incapacity." See Shirley v. Morgan II. As a quasi-independent authority, the Commission and the Office must work with the People, respect the People's recommendations for forms of government, and stand up for the People. And changes to this principle in CO-80-20 will attract further disharmony, challenges, and delay in reaching a form of government based on the People's recommendations.

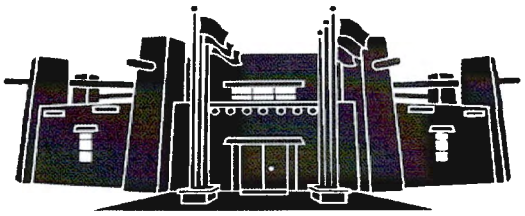

We support the Navajo People's desire for a permanent form of government for the Navajo Nation and we cannot support CO-80-20. We urge the Navajo Council to consider the People's right to establish their government; the power lives in the Navajo People.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Nez, President
