BE IT ENACTED:

SECTION ONE. AUTHORITY

A. The Navajo Nation Council is the governing body of the Navajo Nation and empowered to enact positive law of the Navajo Nation. 2 N.N.C. §§ 102 (A) and 164 (A).

- 1 B. The Naabik'iyati' Committee of the Navajo Nation Council is empowered to review
2 all proposed legislation which requires final action by the Navajo Nation Council.
3 2 N.N.C. §164 (A)(9).
- 4 C. The Budget and Finance Committee of the Navajo Nation Council is empowered
5 to review and recommend to the Navajo Nation Council the budgeting,
6 appropriation, investment, and management of all funds. 2 N.N.C. § 301 (B)(2).
- 7 D. The Law and Order Committee of the Navajo Nation Council is empowered to 8 provide oversight over the Judicial Branch of the Navajo Nation and the Navajo
9 Nation Department of Justice. 2 N.N.C. §§ 601 (C)(1) and (2).

11 SECTION TWO. FINDINGS

- 12 A. In the 1950s, the Navajo Nation shifted from a federal Court of Indian Offenses
13 court system to a tribal court system due to Congress enacting Public Law 83-280
14 which granted certain states criminal jurisdiction over Indians on reservations and 15 allowed civil litigation that had come under tribal or federal court jurisdiction to be 16 handled by state courts. N.N.C. Resolution No. CO-69-58.
- 17 B. Since its inception, the independence and strength of the Navajo Nation Judicial 18 Branch has been a cornerstone for protecting the sovereignty of the Navajo Nation.
19 N.N.C. Resolution No. CD-94-85.
- 20 C. The Navajo Nation Council has consistently sought to ensure Navajo tradition and 21 Diné Fundamental Law as foundational to the Diné jurisprudence practiced in the 22 Navajo Nation Judicial Branch. CD-94-85. Diné Fundamental Law is embodied in 23 statutes and the Courts of the Navajo Nation are required to implement the 24 principles and practice of Diné Fundamental Law. Diné Fundamental Law
25 distinguishes Navajo jurisprudence from Anglo-American jurisprudence because 26 Diné Fundamental Law embodies Diné customs, traditions, values, and beliefs.
- 27 D. The Navajo Nation Council, for decades, has sought to ensure the independence of 28 the Courts of the Navajo Nation. The Judiciary Committee, in recommending 29 judicial reform in 1985, stated that the Navajo Nation Courts have “an inherent 30 right to the financial support needed to carry out their duties...and the Judicial

1 Branch is a separate branch of government and in its duty to operate efficiently and 2 economically must be able to make day-to-day decisions regarding operating costs
3 and expenditures with a minimum of interference and delay.” Judiciary Committee
4 (attachment to CD-94-85).

5 E. In 1982, the Navajo Peacemaker Court was created by Navajo judges through vote
6 of the Judicial Conference. The Navajo judges wanted to find an alternative to 7 Anglo-American judicial methods that had roots in Diné Fundamental Law and that 8 incorporated Diné wisdom, methods, and customs in resolving disputes. At the 9 time, the Peacemaking Court did not properly reflect Diné traditions because 10 standard court procedures, rules, and practices were applied to the Peacemaking
11 process which made the process strongly resemble Anglo-American dispute
12 resolution methods rather than Diné traditions and culture.

13 F. In early 2000, the Peacemaking Court was renamed, rules were replaced with 14 Guidelines, and the traditional Diné Fundamental Law principles and practices
15 were better reflected in the Courts and in Peacemaking.

16 G. The Judicial Branch continues to implement Title 1 of the Navajo Nation Code,
17 Diné Bi Beenahaz'áanii, and recognize Diné jurisprudence and Fundamental Law
18 as foundational to the entire branch and the interworking of the Courts, the 19 Peacemaking Program, and the Probation and Parole Program.

20 H. In 1975, Congress enacted the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance
21 Act (ISDEAA), 25 U.S.C. §§ 5301 et seq. (P.L. 93-638, As Amended), to assist 22 Indian tribes in assuming responsibility for federal government programs. In 2012,
23 the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) and the Navajo Nation Judicial Branch entered 24 into a five (5) year self-determination contract (aka “638 contract”) pursuant to the 25 ISDEAA whereby the BIA funded the Judicial Branch’s provision of federal 26 government programs. This included ensuring that Diné jurisprudence was 27 reflected throughout the Judicial Branch.

28 I. Judicial Branch leadership and staff have worked tirelessly for years to illuminate 29 the grave underfunding of the Navajo Nation judicial system by the federal 30 government, particularly the BIA. The Judicial Branch timely submitted a proposed

1 annual funding agreement for Calendar Year 2014 in the amount of $17,055,517 to
2 the BIA on October 3, 2013 for its federal self-determination contract. The BIA,
3 however, failed to respond to the Judicial Branch's proposal as statutorily required
4 and attempted to partially decline the funding amount.

5 J. In 2014, the Chief Justice of the Navajo Nation requested the Navajo Nation
6 Attorney General and Department of Justice (NNDOJ) to file a lawsuit against the 7 U.S. Department of Interior (DOI) and Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) for violating 8 the ISDEAA. The Attorney General subsequently filed suit against the DOI and 9 other federal government programs on behalf of the Navajo Nation contending that 10 the BIA failed to approve or decline the Calendar Year 2014 annual funding 11 agreement within the statutorily mandated ninety (90) day window and thus, the 12 BIA had to deem the annual funding agreement approved as a matter of law. The 13 lawsuit was titled Navajo Nation v. Department of Interior, et al., No. 14-cv-1909
14 (TSC)

15 K. On April 4, 2017, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled in 16 favor of the Navajo Nation and the Judicial Branch. On June 12, 2020, the U.S.
17 District Court for the District of Columbia ruled in favor of the Navajo Nation and 18 the Judicial Branch and awarded the Navajo Nation $15.7 million. The federal 19 government did not appeal the decision and the final award in the amount of 20 $18,279,923.32, attached as Exhibit A, includes statutory interest to the date of the 21 award.

22 L. NNDOJ expended Fixed Cost Litigation Account funds to litigate against the DOI
23 and other federal government agencies on behalf of the Judicial Branch. Exhibit B
24 [Marked as "confidential" by the Navajo Nation Attorney General pursuant to 2
25 N.N.C. § 164 (A)(6).]

26 M. Through its leadership, the Judicial Branch, with the assistance of NNDOJ, 27 continues to fight to increase the federal self-determination contract to a level of 28 funding that reflects the federally contracted work that the Judicial Branch
29 performs. For years, the Judicial Branch has argued that the underfunding by the 30 BIA of its federal self-determination contract has created a void of available

1 services to Navajo people. The Judicial Branch has consistently maintained that 2 the $17,055,517 originally requested for Calendar Year 2014 was based upon the 3 actual fiscal needs of the Judicial Branch to provide the federally contracted
4 services on an annual basis.

5 N. The Navajo Nation recognizes that this initial lawsuit turned on the failure of the 6 BIA to respond to the Judicial Branch as required by federal statute and continues
7 to fight to that ensure that the Judicial Branch federal self-determination contracts
8 are fully funded.

9 O. The Navajo Nation recognizes the substantial needs of the Judicial Branch to be 10 fully funded to continue developing one of the most complex indigenous judicial 11 systems throughout the world that fully contemplates Diné jurisprudence and Diné
12 Bi Beenahaz'áanii. Navajo Nation sovereignty demands a comprehensive system
13 that fully integrates Diné Bi Beenahaz'áanii into peacemaking and court systems to 14 provide a judicial system to Navajo people that is reflective of Navajo traditions
15 and culture.

16 P. The Navajo Nation recognizes that a fully funded, independent judiciary and 17 peacemaking system is necessary to protect the sovereignty of the Navajo Nation
18 and respects the expertise of the Judicial Branch leadership to identify the priorities
19 for expending the funds awarded by the federal court through Navajo Nation v.
20 Department of Interior, et al., No. 14-cv-1909 (TSC), as well as the funds from any 21 subsequent awards or settlements.

22 Q. Pursuant to 12 N.N.C. § 820 (K) of the Navajo Nation Appropriations Act, funds
23 received in excess of the initial or current revenue projections, e.g., court awards or 24 settlements, shall be deposited in to the General Fund Unreserved Undesignated
25 Fund balance unless otherwise designated by the Navajo Nation Council.

26 R. The Navajo Nation appreciates that the Judicial Branch is a unique judicial system
27 and has funding needs that are not considered during the annual comprehensive 28 budget process and that funding of this nature, i.e., an award from the federal court,
29 can and should be directed primarily to the Judicial Branch to develop long-term 30

1 planning and systems that benefit the entire Judicial Branch and enhance judicial
2 services across the Navajo Nation.

TANYA S. CHUTKAN
United States District Judge

I. BACKGROUND

This case arises from a contract between the Nation and the Navajo Regional Office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), a federal agency within DOI, under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975, 25 U.S.C. §§ 5301 et seq. (ISDEAA). Under this contract, the parties must negotiate annual funding agreements (AFAs), which determine the annual level of funding provided to the Nation.

During its 2013 negotiations with DOI, the Nation sought $17,055,517 to fund its Tribal Courts Program for CY 2014. This was an amount substantially larger than had been proposed or awarded in previous years. The Nation submitted a “Scope of Work” document outlining the reasons for its request (ECF No. 44-1, Ex. 1 Attach. A at 3), as well as a summary of how its proposed budget would be allocated among ten different categories. (ECF No. 44-1, Ex. 1 Attach. B.)

The Nation hand-delivered the proposed AFA to the BIA on October 4, 2013. Pursuant to BIA regulations, a proposal is “deemed approved” if not declined within 90 days. 25 C.F.R. § 900.18. The BIA issued a partial declination on January 15, 2014, 13 days overdue. In the course of this litigation, DOI argued that the partial government shutdown, which lasted until October 17, 2013, delayed its receipt of the proposed AFA, pushing back the deadline; DOI additionally argued that principles of equitable estoppel barred the Nation from prevailing on its claims. The parties cross-moved for summary judgment, and the court ruled for DOI. (ECF No. 30, Mem. Op. at 15.)

The D.C. Circuit reversed, holding that the proposed AFA was received on the date it was delivered, that the BIA’s partial declination was untimely, and that, therefore, the Nation’s proposal was deemed approved as a matter of law. Navajo Nation v. U.S. Dep’t of Interior, 852

F.3d 1124, 1130 (D.C. Cir. 2017). That Court did not, however, determine what damages should be awarded to the Nation. Id.

The parties have since agreed that the court should enter judgment for the Nation, but disagree as to appropriate damages. (ECF No. 36, Joint Status Report at 2.) Following the parties' filings regarding an entry of judgment, the court ordered that proper damages are an amount that is "facially reasonable." (Minute Order, February 15, 2019 (citing Seneca Nation of Indians v. U.S. Dep't of Health & Human Servs., 945 F. Supp. 2d 135, 152 (D.D.C. 2013)).) The parties agreed to submit a further round of briefing as to whether Plaintiff's requested damages, totaling $15,762,985—representing the proposed AFA minus the $1,292,532 approved by the BIA—are facially reasonable. (ECF No. 43, Joint Status Report at 1.)

II. ANALYSIS

The court finds that damages of $15,762,985 are facially reasonable.

In its brief, DOI argues that Plaintiff's requested amount is unreasonably large compared to the requested funding in previous years, and additionally that such a large award would have disproportionate and adverse effects on the BIA's budget for tribal services more generally. (ECF No. 45, Defs. Resp. at 5, 8–9.) DOI thus advocates for an unspecified award of damages using $2,130,077 and $780,418—the differences between the requested funding in 2012 and 2013, and the approved funding in 2014, respectively—as "guideposts." (Id. at 12.) The Nation is correct that the ISDEAA emphasizes discretion and does not require proportionality between one year's proposed funding and the next. (ECF No. 46, Pl. Reply at 4.) However, such proportionality, or disproportionality, may serve as a helpful benchmark in determining what damages are facially reasonable.

DOI contends that several items in the proposed AFA are of questionable reasonableness. For example, it points to a six-fold increase in travel expenses, several one-off expenses related to the repair and maintenance of facilities, and a 500 percent increase in requested personnel salary and fringe benefits, forming the bulk of the proposed funding—$13,323,385—despite a corresponding decrease in the Nation’s judicial caseload. (Defs. Resp. at 6–7.) The Nation does not respond to these criticisms in detail, but argues that the “Scope of Work” document submitted as part of its proposal addresses its need for increased funding. (Pl. Reply at 5.)

The Nation’s “Scope of Work” document adequately outlines its justifications for such an increase in funding. The document points to several “severe shortfalls” in funding, and additionally notes that the $17 million sum was not as unprecedented as DOI suggests: roughly the same amount had been proposed as part of the Nation’s budget priorities two years previously. (Ex. 1 Attach. A at 3.) The only applicable case to consider a similar question, Seneca Nation, concluded that such an explanation of a “perceived funding gap” was facially reasonable, even if the proposed increase there was not as significant as in this case. 945 F. Supp. 2d at 152. Moreover, a decrease in caseload is not dispositive of the Nation’s budgetary needs; faced with shortfalls, it is plausible that this decrease was a response to inadequate funding, not a refutation of it.

DOI’s argument that the proposed amount is unreasonable because the Nation had “not even spent all the funds awarded to it” is likewise unpersuasive. (Defs. Resp. at 10–11.) As the Nation notes in its reply brief, this does not accurately describe its expenditures since 2012, which indicate that 99 percent of the funding under the contract was obligated as of December 31, 2018. (Pl. Reply at 1 n.1.) Furthermore, as with the Nation’s caseload, it is not unreasonable that the Nation would be hesitant in allocating the funding it did receive, given that it contends this funding was drastically insufficient to meet its needs.

DOI additionally argues that an award of full damages would result in more than 60 percent of the BIA's total annual funding for tribal courts being allocated to the Nation alone, a result both disproportionate and likely to divert existing resources from other tribes or programs. (Defs. Resp. at 8–9.) On this, however, the law is clear. The Supreme Court has repeatedly stressed that “as long as Congress has appropriated sufficient legally unrestricted funds to pay contracts . . . the Government normally cannot back out of a promise to pay on grounds of insufficient appropriations” absent “something special about the promises at issue.” Cherokee Nation of Okla. v. Leavitt, 543 U.S. 631, 632 (2005). See also Salazar v. Ramah Navajo Chapter, 567 U.S. 182, 191 (2012) (holding that tribal contractors “need not keep track of agencies’ shifting priorities and competing obligations; rather, they may trust that the Government will honor its contractual promises.”).

This is particularly essential in light of concerns regarding the “Government’s past failure adequately to reimburse tribes’ indirect administrative costs,” Cherokee Nation, 543 U.S. at 639, as well as the historical underfunding of both the Nation’s courts and tribal justice systems more generally. See ECF No. 44, Pl. Mem. at 2–4. Arguments that a financial windfall to the Nation would come “at the expense of other Indian tribes . . . impermissibly invite the Court to meddle with [Government] contracts and ‘render its promises nonbinding.’” Seneca Nation, 945 F. Supp. 2d at 151 (quoting Cherokee Nation, 543 U.S. at 641).<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> DOI has expressed concern that any award in this case may impact the parties’ positions in the related cases regarding the Nation’s funding for CY 2015 and beyond, also before the court. See Case Nos. 1:16-cv-011-TSC, 1:17-cv-513-TSC, 1:17-cv-863-TSC, 1:18-cv-774-TSC, 1:19-cv-3612-TSC, and 1:20-cv-1297-TSC. The court’s ruling here should not be taken as dispositive of

The Nation's brief regarding an entry of judgment argued against a facial reasonableness standard, insisting that it was entitled to the requested damages in full by virtue of the governing regulation. (ECF No. 38, Pl. Resp. at 4.) 25 C.F.R. § 900.18 states that, when a proposal is not declined within 90 days and is thus deemed approved, the Secretary "shall award the contract . . . and add to the contract the full amount of funds pursuant to section 106(a) of the [ISDEAA]" (emphasis added). Indeed, the D.C. Circuit quoted this language in determining that the Nation's damages were not limited by the "funds the BIA would otherwise have expended." Navajo Nation, 852 F.3d at 1130. Despite the court's February 15, 2019 order that proper damages are an amount that is facially reasonable, the Nation continues to argue implicitly that this regulatory language makes its requested damages facially reasonable per se. See, e.g., Pl. Reply at 2 ("An award in that amount is facially reasonable because it is fully supported by the applicable law.").

There is some ambiguity as to the proper standard for award of damages, and both parties have marshaled several arguments in favor of their respective theories. Although the D.C. Circuit quoted the "full amount of funds" language, it did so in the context of rejecting DOI's attempt to cap damages, and did not specify whether the regulatory language placed further constraints on the court's discretion in awarding damages. Navajo Nation, 852 F.3d at 1130. Likewise, although the court in Seneca Nation awarded damages that were facially reasonable, its opinion can also plausibly be read as endorsing the Nation's theory of damages. See id. at 151–52 ("Moreover, questioning the validity of the Nation's per-person amount is not a proper task for the Court at this juncture. . . . [T]hat is a matter properly addressed through contract negotiations or through declination of the proposed amendment.").

those cases, and DOI may choose to argue that the one-off expenses included in this award should be excluded from any judgment in those cases.

Notwithstanding the Nation's repeated arguments against the use of a facial reasonableness standard, this court will not revisit its earlier conclusion that facial reasonableness is the applicable standard. Applying that standard, this court concludes that $15,762,985 is facially reasonable.

Memorandum:

To: 2 NNC § 164 Reviewers
Delegates & 2 NNC '164 Reviewers
Navajo Nation Government

From: Pearlline Kirk, Controller
Office of the Controller
Date: January 26, 2021
Subject: Legislation 0011-21, Establishing the Navajo Nation Hashkeeji Nahat'a Beeso Ba Hooghan by Amending Title Twelve of the Navajo Nation Code

In response to legislation 0011-21, the Office of the Controller (OOC) recognizes the efforts and responsibility put forth by Navajo Nation Department of Justice.

However, the settlement received by the Navajo Nation from the Department of the Interior and Bureau of Indian Affairs related to the violation of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act should be recorded in compliance with the Navajo Nation Code Title 12 of the Navajo Nation Appropriations Act. As noted in the legislation, "funds received in excess of initial or current revenue projects, e.g., court awards or settlements, shall be deposited into the General Fund Unreserved Undesignated Fund balance (UUFB) unless otherwise designated by Council."

Navajo Nation Council has acted to designate non-recurring revenue to a specific fund other than the General Fund UUFB. However, this action was the unprecedented $554 million settlement from the United States Government into the Sihasin Fund.

The issues that result from Council approving this legislation is that it may set a precedent. If the Judicial Branch and the Department of Justice can successfully create a new fund for the award in question and any additional awards, this may allow for future awards unrelated to the Judicial Branch's PL 93-68 contracts of annual funding agreement awards to be redirected the proposed new fund. Furthermore, we do not want to set a precedent that may open the door for other branches and departments to request the same treatment for non-recurring revenue.

Additionally, the proposed fund management plan states "The net proceeds of all settlement or judgement awards stemming from litigation brought on behalf of the Judicial Branch of the Navajo Nation related to the underfunding of the Judicial Branch Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act contract(s) and annual funding agreement(s) shall be deposited into the Fund after the Fixed Cost Litigation Account has been reimbursed for the actual costs of such litigation, as calculated and attested to by the Attorney General of the Navajo Nation." The OOC is concerned that a calculation and attestation solely by the Attorney General does not lend itself to transparency. 12 N.N.C. § 203 states that the Controller is responsible for financial policy and procedures and is to exercise supervisory control. The position is to develop and coordinate programs of financial management at all levels within the Navajo Nation Government.

In addition, the accounting and reporting for an additional fund requires additional resources for the OOC. Currently, the accounting system for the Navajo Nation includes over 100 individual non-grant funds. Each of those funds require reconciliation, reporting, and required auditing. The reporting structure for the proposed fund would be determined by the Government Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 54, Fund Balance Reporting and Governmental Type Definitions. As the fund would not have a recurring revenue source, the fund must be consolidated into the General Fund for financial reporting purposes and the fund balance would be considered committed in the General Fund.

The proposed fund seeks to participate in the Investment Program along with the Master Trust. It is imperative to consider the longevity of the fund. Fees and high transactions may not be beneficial in the short to intermediate term. We bring this to your attention because there is a "Termination" sub-section stating the fund will expire upon expending of fund income and principal. It would be prudent to determine how the funds will be used in order to identify if long-term investing is practical.

Lastly, the proposed fund management plan calls for an annual audit to be completed within 120 of the fiscal year end. Generally, the Navajo Nation's annual audit deadline to file with the Federal Audit Clearinghouse is June 30th of year following a fiscal year end; for the financial state audit the deadline is that the audit must be approved by the Navajo Nation Council before deliberations for the following year Comprehensive Budgets. It would be impossible to get the Nation's audit completed within 120 days of the fiscal year end. Furthermore, we will need to confirm whether the Nation or if the proposed fund will cover the audit expense.
